Dear Sirs:

Please accept this letter as our expression of gratitude, not only for the completion of an organ console renovation contract, but also for the unselfish dedication to the principles of excellence and workmanship.

Under the unusual conditions experienced by your personnel that week, the completion of our organ console installation on Easter Sunday morning at 5 a.m. was beyond expectations. Our organist will no doubt remember for many "Easters" the many different emotions connected with the realization that he really would have an organ to play on that day.

In the use of the instrument since Easter, it is very apparent that the quality of workmanship is there and will remain there for many years to come.

Again, our thanks to you and your staff for providing an avenue of musical praise to our God and Father! May your special calling in this music field enjoy continued success.

Sincerely,
